Proposed master plan presentation Aug. 6

The first public presentation of the proposed Carmel Valley Master Plan will be Monday, Aug. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in the Carmel Valley Manor Auditorium.

The Carmel Valley Master Plan Study Committee, the volunteer group appointed more than two years ago by Supervisor Sam Farr to bring the Valley Master Plan up to date, will make the presentation. Opinions from the public are invited.

County supervisors were presented the proposed Master Plan at their meeting July 3 and referred it to the planning commission for its recommendation. (The complete text of the proposed Master Plan was published as a supplement to the July 5 Carmel Valley Outlook.)

Among the highlights of the plan are:

- The plan reiterates the commonly held objective to retain the rural character of Carmel Valley.

- A quota of 2,500 new dwelling units to be

THE SITE OF the future Barbara Mark condominium subdivision in Carmel Valley Village is seen from Paso Hondo Road and Village Drive where the entrance will be located on the controversial proposal. After a seven-year battle with Valley neighbors, Mrs. Mark may receive approval next week of her use permit for a 40-unit condominium development on the land her family has owned since 1939. Previous plans to develop the 9.2 acres were defeated by opponents who now argue that the 40-unit project is also too high a density for the rural upper valley village. (Steve Hellman photo)

Victory near for Mark's condominium plan?

By STEVE HELLMAN

AFTER NEARLY a decade of diminishing plans and mounting debt, it appeared certain last week that Mrs. Barbara Mark will have a luxurious condominium development on her embattled 9.2 acres in Carmel Valley Village.

Mrs. Mark, who said she is faced with inheritance taxes and unpaid fees totalling $350,000, emerged from an appeal hearing before the Board of Supervisors on Tuesday, July 17, close to a final agreement for a 40-unit condominium development.

Appearing with her Tuesday were Carmel attorney Francis "Skip" Lloyd and Carmel architect Jerry Romis, who is jointly backing the project on the property that has been owned by Mrs. Mark's family for 40 years.

"AFTER ALL THESE years we've got it," Lloyd exclaimed after the meeting, referring to the seven-year battle to develop the commercially zoned property.

The trio agreed to a scaled-down plan for 40 large-size condominium units in exchange for compromises from the supervisors on 13 conditions.

Final agreement on the development is expected at the supervisors' July 31 meeting when the county staff will return with a draft of the negotiated conditions.

The compromise came Tuesday despite complaints from the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association that the 40 units were too great a density for a "mere nine acres."

The condominium development will include a swimming pool, tennis court and spacious two-bedroom units up to 1,650 square feet, including lofts. The development is planned for 9.2 acres zoned for commercial use behind the White Oak shops between Paso Hondo and Esquiline roads.

FOLLOWING HER MOTHER'S death in 1971, Mrs. Mark decided to develop the family's property. She had originally proposed a 100-unit resort with tennis courts and a restaurant. She then revised the proposal to a 55-unit condominium complex after residents protested the original plan.

John Broberg, who represented the property owners association at the meeting Tuesday, presented a written statement from the organization which charged that "this project would unalterably change the lifestyle of Carmel Valley Village."

Broberg argued that the increase of each unit from 1,350 square feet to 1,650 square feet, even though the number of units had been reduced, would allow these condominiums to be as large as houses. "If they are going to be this large," he said, "there should be fewer of them."

Supervisors, however, declined to reopen the density issue. Instead, they listened during the three-hour hearing to arguments against 13 of the 50 conditions placed by the planning commission on the use permit and tentative map for the 40-unit condominium.

Lloyd and Romis argued successfully against requirements for an interior public road, outside road improvements and the complete cost for a $12,000 storm drain.

OTHER REQUIREMENTS FOR restricted garbage disposal, perimeter hiking and riding trails and restrictive historical-resources zoning to preserve old buildings on the site were referred to county staff for revision.

"Now we've got something that makes sense to everybody," Lloyd said. He told this newspaper that the remaining conditions would probably be resolved at the supervisors' July 31 meeting at 3 p.m.

Supervisor Sam Farr agreed, "The 40 units seem pretty acceptable."

In response to the property owners association's 11th-hour argument for 30 units, Farr said, "The board was not

'I can assure you that Rancho Canada will not be developed in another 25 years'--Nick Lombardo, July 1974

Mrs. Barbara Shipnuck
Monterey County Board of Supervisors
P.O. Box 1004
Salinas, CA 93902

Dear Barbara:

I have been deeply distressed about the Board of Supervisors' action on the Rancho Canada project and feel compelled to express my great disappointment to you, since according to newspaper accounts you were instrumental in bringing the supervisors to their decision.

One of my principal concerns is that you placed so much weight in approving the project on the opponents' failure to come up with an alternative proposal. On the contrary, if the opponents can show that a project is premature because the necessary facilities and services do not exist to accommodate it without seriously affecting the public health, welfare, and/or safety, then they should not have an obligation to find another use for the property. A satisfactory low-density use already exists, and more intensive development must await creation of the necessary infrastructure to support it. It is my understanding that this is one of the main tenets of the county's evolving growth management plan.

In the case of Rancho Canada, it was just five years ago that Nick Lombardo asserted that it would not be developed in another 25 years (see enclosed excerpt from the Carmel Pine Cone, July 18, 1974). He can hardly fault the county, therefore, for failing to provide the necessary facilities and services for this development in 1979. It is clear to me and many others that Mr. Lombardo accelerated his development plans in order to get "under the wire" before the new Carmel Valley Master Plan is approved.

I find it particularly ironic, therefore, that Rancho Canada has been excluded from the interim ordinance affecting major developments in Carmel Valley until the new master plan is approved, and I am surprised that the City of Carmel would agree to this exclusion.

It is especially disturbing to me that in reaching its decision to approve this project the board paid so little attention to the recommendation of the Carmel Valley Master Plan Committee to limit motel development to the area of development concentration. The basic purpose of the committee's recommendation was to preserve a balance between residential and visitor accommodations and to keep the mouth of the valley oriented primarily toward residential services. I fear that this decision bodes ill for the future of the new master plan, and as a member of the committee that put hundreds of hours of work into the plan, I wish to register a strong protest.

I would also like to protest the criticism leveled by the supervisors at the Carmel Sanitary District that it is using its shortage of capacity to limit growth. For several years now this facility has regularly exceeded its capacity during crowded periods, and it seems unconscionable to me to permit major new connections before capacity is expanded.

In conclusion I would like to state my opinion that this is the wrong type of development coming at the wrong time and in the wrong place. Since you have asked for constructive alternative proposals, I personally would prefer to see a reasonable number of condominiums on this property rather than motel accommodations.

No development approaching the size requested by Mr. Lombardo should be approved, however, until the Hatton Canyon road is completed or at least under construction and the sewage treatment plant expanded. Both these projects could be readily accomplished, I believe, with the time frame suggested by Mr. Lombardo five years ago.

Editor's Note: The following appeared in the "Carmel Pine Cone," July 14, 1974:

An otherwise routine meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Regional Parks District was the scene last Thursday of an emotional exchange between John Sigourney, board president, and Nick Lombardo, the manager of the Rancho Canada golf course.

Lombardo responded to what he termed "an unjust and paranoid attitude" about golf courses, as expressed in public statements by the board president. His appearance before the board was prompted by views expressed by Sigourney on an area radio program. He had, at that time, "implied that area golf courses are somehow going to give way to condominium development," said Lombardo.

Sigourney reiterated the gist of his radio statement. "I merely stated," he said, "that there is nothing permanent about golf courses and I would like to see them made more permanent by some means."

He had suggested that golf courses, particularly those in Carmel Valley which include Rancho Canada, be placed in a scenic easement to guarantee their preservation as open space.

"There hasn't been a golf course lost to development on the Peninsula in 25 years with the exception of the El Toro," stated Lombardo. "And I can assure you that the Rancho Canada will not be developed in another 25."

Sigourney, while attempting to call for point of order, stating that comments before the board must be restricted to items on the agenda, was silenced by comments of board member John Lord.

"I must agree with Mr. Lombardo that our golf courses are a definite benefit to our area in that they provide a number of services in addition to providing open space," he said.

"It just seems to me Mr. Sigourney should put his obvious talents into the duties of the board, and not into making public innuendo," responded Lombardo.

Grateful

Letters to the editor are welcome. While there is no limit on the number of words, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for length and style, but without changing the intent of the letter writer. Viewpoints on all matters are acceptable following the guidelines of good taste. Anonymous letters are not acceptable, but names may be withheld upon request.

Dear Editor:

Please accept my gratitude for all the effort and support you have given the public in reporting the Carmel Valley Master Plan process.

I am extremely pleased with the draft and your reprint of it. I have sent it all over the state to persons interested in master plans.

You can take pride in knowing that the draft will have much easier sailing through the adoption process because of the broad public understanding you have created.

Bottoms up master planning takes time, but it's got to work because it involves people.

Your contribution will be officially noted when I can get the appropriate resolutions printed.

Until such time please accept this humble but heartfelt thanks.

Dear Editor:

I know this letter will come as somewhat of a surprise, but after reading it I hope you will understand.

My name is Karl Arendt. I am a resident at the Columbus Correctional Facility in Columbus, Ohio. I am 26 years old and have been in prison for the past four years.

The few friends I had seemed to have forgotten me, and to say the least, my life is a lonely one.

If at all possible, I would like to overcome my present situation and become a productive member of society.

You see, Mr. Editor, I realize no man is an island. I found this out the hard way through experience. I have just about paid my debt to society and would like to correspond with people.

I hope your subscribers will write. I will answer all letters because I really do want to meet new friends.

constructed in Carmel Valley during the next 20 years. These would be phased in at the rate of 125 per year. (This would add 50 percent to the existing population of Carmel Valley.)

• Developers would vie for rights to construct dwelling units. All proposed developments would be rated according to an elaborate point system based on the care and attention given to land use, hazards, visual resources and biological resources.

THIS MODEST BUILDING which once was a former milk foreman's home is now the residence of Mrs. Mark. She said she had the welfare of her neighbors and the community in mind when she originally proposed a 100-unit resort motel on the rear of the property. But last week opponents were still unhappy with the possible approval of a 40-unit condominium development on the site.

REPUTED HOME of the famous Monterey Jack cheese, this former milkhouse on the front of the Mark property was deemed historically significant by the county. One question still to be resolved is whether part of the property should be zoned for historical significance.

Supervisors expected to approve project July 31

Victory near for Mark's condominium plan?

seriously considering it. There wasn't enough evidence to overrule the planning commission and staff's support for the 40 units." The planning commission had recommended at its May 30 meeting that the development be trimmed from 46 to 40 units.

FARR NOTED THAT the public, including the property owners association, had not appealed the unanimous decision by the planning commission to approve a tentative map and use permit for 40 units.

"Had they (Mrs. Mark) just accepted the 50 conditions, they would have had their permit and project then and there," Farr said.

"We appealed for sound reasons," Mrs. Mark said in an interview the day after the meeting.

Seated in her home at the front of the property along Carmel Valley Road, she looked weary as she recalled the seven years she has battled to develop her family's land.

Her home, a former milk foreman's residence, is among the buildings the county wanted protected because of "historical significance."

"I FEEL AS IF I've been made a target," Mrs. Mark said. "People who know me here know my interest. Two heavy inheritance taxes are the reason for the development."

"I've lived in nearly every building," she said, referring to the buildings on her property along Carmel Valley Road. "I've as much interest as anyone in preserving these buildings. But we don't need historic zoning; it'll unfairly prevent any development on the front of the property."

Asked who she thought would purchase the large condominium units proposed for the rear of her property, she replied, "Local people, retired people. Not so many families as such."

Broberg, at the Tuesday meeting, attacked the development on the grounds it would "add to sewage, traffic and air quality problems."

ACCORDING TO BROBERG, the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association remained opposed to Mrs. Mark's plans because "such a development is just too large for the space on which it is planned."

"It was a real shocker," Broberg said, "when it was learned that the size of each unit had been increased dramatically."

The earlier 55-unit proposal, approved by the Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee, included units up to 1,350 square feet. Because of sewage disposal restrictions, however, the county Health Department requested a reduction in the number of units.

When the 55-unit proposal was abandoned for 46 units, the floor space was increased.

Broberg contended it meant that "these units would amount to family homes of a permanent nature."

Broberg lives just around the corner, on Village Drive and Paso Hondo, within view of the vacant acreage proposed for development.

A COUNTY POLICY adopted in 1964 allowed multi-residential use on excess commercial zoning in the Valley. But a moratorium in 1974 placed a ban on further multiple-dwelling residential development in the large areas of commercial zoning throughout Carmel Valley Village, according to Lloyd.

"It's difficult to say where the market will be for these condominiums," said Romis, who joined Mrs. Mark with an option to purchase the property in order to help her with the inheritance taxes.

He predicted that the buyers would be "empty nesters"—people with grown families, although not necessarily retired couples.

In response to the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association charges that the two bedrooms and loft will be the same as three bedrooms, Romis said, "Crazy."

"Nationally, condominium dwellings have 2.2 persons per unit, while there are 2.1 persons per house in the entire Carmel Valley," Romis claimed.

CARMEL PLANNING DIRECTOR Bob Griggs, in a telephone interview with this newspaper, had an opposite view of this density issue.

"There's ample room for two, three, even four people and guests in that size unit," he said, noting that a 1,650-square-foot unit is comparatively large for suburban living.

With the lofts, Griggs said, "It's very luxurious living. It's more than you'd get in Carmel in a one-story home on a 40x100-foot lot."

When asked about Griggs' comment, Lloyd replied, "You get used to Carmel's small houses."

Lloyd contended that families with children wouldn't be able to afford the high costs of the units. He declined to state the planned selling prices.

MRS. MARK HAD SOME success in her appeal to the supervisors Tuesday on the conditions placed by the planning commission. Among the conditions she opposed were those for storm drainage, road dedication, riding and hiking trails, garbage disposal and zoning for the preservation of historic buildings.

The supervisors agreed to establish a pro rata mechanism so that the $12,000 cost for the reinforced concrete pipe for storm drains would be spread between Mrs. Mark and future developments in the area.

The county initially proposed that the Mark development install the storm drain along Esquiline Road to alleviate existing problems, but Lloyd argued it was unfair. He said the most the condominiums would add to the existing area drainage would be 2 percent. "We want some basic equity in this," he said.

Mrs. Mark had objected to bearing the entire cost since most of the storm runoff which flows through the existing drainage channel comes from more than 500 acres which she does not own.

Supervisor Dusan Petrovic questioned the pro rata contributions, asking, "Will it apply to developed land, undeveloped or developable land?"

Farr answered it would be up to Mrs. Mark to "front the money," and the county to work out a fair share mechanism for future developments.

ANOTHER CONDITION Mrs. Mark successfully debated was the dedication of 42 feet along Carmel Valley Road from its centerline.

The county counsel resolved the debate on this by proposing that the developers dedicate the extra roadway, and the county would then grant an encroachment permit.

Otherwise, argued Lloyd, the county would be taking 10,000 square feet or $40,000 of valuable commercial property from the front of the parcel which wasn't part of the condominium development.

Lloyd agreed an encroachment permit would protect the existing off-street parking for the White Oak shops.

The planning commission also had stipulated that a main interior road paved to a width of 24 feet be constructed through the 9.2 acres with access from Esquiline. The commission's position was that this main interior road would relieve some of the traffic congestion on Carmel Valley Road.

Mrs. Mark was joined in her appeal of this by the county Public Works Department which said the county had no business maintaining a public road through a private development.

LOYD SAID THERE was no argument with the width, as long as the road remained private.

Tied to this requirement was another condition that the developer provide channelization or a deceleration taper along Esquiline Road to the entrance of the condominiums.

Public Works Director Bruce McClain suggested that the Esquiline entrance be eliminated, and the interior road remain private.

But Planning Director Ed DeMars argued that the interior public road and second entrance at Esquiline were needed to accommodate traffic in the area.

The debate was further complicated by Broberg's suggestion that the entrance at Paso Hondo be moved 100 feet north to avoid a dangerous "blind uphill curve."

MCCLAIN SAID THAT MOVING the Paso Hondo entrance would require a new tentative map.

Supervisor Barbara Shipnuck said the entrance was "best situated where it's shown opposite Village Drive."

She added that it would be contradictory to eliminate the Esquiline entrance if "we're going to keep the interior road private."

Shipnuck suggested that a traffic signal might solve the dispute. But Farr shot back, "A traffic signal in Carmel Valley—that's heresy."

some of the conditions placed on her plans for a condominium development on her property in Carmel Valley Village. She may reach an agreement with supervisors on her proposal at their July 31 meeting. (Steve Hellman photos)

Victory near for Mark's condominium plan?

The supervisors agreed to eliminate the through road and the Esquiline entrance.

The supervisors delayed action on whether garbage disposals will be allowed in the condominiums.

Walter Wong of the county Health Department recommended that the development not include garbage disposals and on-site water softeners.

WONG FEARED THE TWO would diminish the septic tank capacity, causing possible contamination of groundwater and damage to the system's leach fields.

A decision on this condition was referred to county staff for a revision and consideration at the July 31 meeting.

The planning commission also wanted a 15-foot easement dedicated on three sides of the development for hiking and horse riding trails.

DeMars said that the hiking trail easement was definitely required down Esquiline Road, unless the county broke a "policy in process throughout the Valley."

A decision was postponed to the July 31 meeting for a clarification from the staff on the policy.

TO PROTECT THREE buildings considered in one study to be "historically significant," the planning commission had recommended that special zoning be applied to preserve the milkhouse (now an art gallery), milk foreman's house (Mrs. Mark's residence) and an old redwood barn (once used as a theater).

But Dennis Wardell of the county Parks Department asked the supervisors to delete the zoning condition. He said that because of alterations to the buildings over the 40 years that they've been owned by the Marks, they were not historically significant. Wardell prepared the study which had previously deemed the buildings historic.

Farr, mentioning that the milkhouse was the reputed birthplace of Monterey Jack cheese, said the condition would be rewritten and looked at again on July 31.

"There's no credibility to this," Romis said afterward. "Most of the buildings are only 26 years old."

VALLEY SCOUT RETURNS FROM CRUISE

Kerry O'Hara returned this week from a seafaring adventure aboard the 101-foot schooner Adventuress. With girls from all over the United States who made up the ship's crew, Kerry made a two-week cruise that included visits to Puget Sound, the San Juan Islands and Canadian harbors. As members of the crew, the girls stood watch, learned to sail small boats and large ships, took turns at the helm of the Adventuress, charted the course and had a tremendous experience. Kerry is already making plans for next year and a crew reunion in November.

Kerry is a member of the Senior Girl Scouts of the Monterey Peninsula. The adviser is Mrs. William Brandt. Kerry is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben O'Hara of Lilac Lane.

VALLEY ESTABLISHMENT HAS NEW NAME AND OWNER

"The Broken Bit" is the new name for the former Country Inn. It was purchased by Adrona Blunt. She celebrated the event with a grand opening party, called "Afternoon Delight," on the Fourth of July. Music was furnished by a country rock group, "Fire House Harris," while guests enjoyed a chicken barbecue. The event was a forerunner of similar parties scheduled once a month.

Adrona, a 20-year resident of Carmel, is moving to the Valley this weekend. Members of her staff at the Broken Bit include Pam De Leon, Leon Mitchell, Debbie Piper and Becky Foote.

ANNIVERSARY IN VALLEY

Mickey and Russ Shapiro of Marin have planned a series of mini-vacations this summer instead of a long trip because of the fuel problems. One of the mini-trips brought them to their former Valley home on the Fourth of July to celebrate their 18th wedding anniversary.

Finding their favorite Village bistro closed, their anniversary dinner became a cookout on the Monterey beach where they shared the holiday and family fireworks with former Valley neighbors and friends.

CARMEL HIGH BOOSTERS CLUB

Outgoing president Gary Childs has passed the gavel to John Pack, who will head the Carmel High School's Padre Booster executive board for the 1979-80 school year.

Elected to serve with Pack were Bruce Matson, first vice president; Harry Raynes, second vice president; Ginger Marto, secretary and Sue Lloyd, treasurer.

The organization is open to all parents and persons interested in supporting the Padre program. Fees range from $5 for a member, $25 for a sponsor and any contribution over $25 for a patron.

A fund-raiser is being planned on Sept. 8, following the Fall Jamboree. Watch the Outlook for details.

PATRIOTIC PARTY THEME

A large figure of Uncle Sam greeted the 23 guests who arrived at 4 p.m. on the Fourth of July for swimming, cocktails by the pool and dinner in the lanai. Hostess Kathryn Walker and many of the guests wore red, white and blue attire, matching the party decor, tapers and flowers.

Sharing the festivities around the pool were Patty and Dick Clarkson; Katie and Bob Auner; Shirley and Chester Sargent; Gene and Getty Fairchild; Jane and Jack Sassard; June and Dave Fellows; Gretchen and Peter Glod; Bernice Leonie and her daughter, Mildred Anner, a guest from Coalinga; Mary Ann Wild, from Washington, D.C.; Frances Anthony; Jean Cooksey; Alice Johnson; Doyle Martin and Barnet Segal.

VALLEYITE NAMED TO EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The California Christmas Tree Growers Association held its annual meeting in Riverside.

Among new officers elected for the coming year was Valleyite Robert Zobel. Zobel is owner of the "Greener 'N Evergreen" farm on West Carmel Valley Road.

REMEMBER WHEN?

From the "Carmel Valley Outlook," July 30, 1969

CUTBACK HURTS VALLEY

Recent action taken by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors which trimmed advertising allocations by 25 percent brought protests from Chairman Willard Branson and Bob Kvenild. With the exception of the $10,000 subsidy for the Bicentennial, the board adopted a policy to phase out the advertising program over the next four years.

Since Carmel Valley depends heavily upon tourist trade for its income, this action would affect most businesses in the area. Chairman Branson protested the cutback, which decreases Carmel Valley's allocation from $2,000 to $1,500 a year.

Industrial leaders plan a campaign to persuade the board to reverse its policy next year and restore the advertising funds.

CAMP AMIGOS IN SESSION

The happy sounds of summer—excited shrieks, playful splashes, bubbling laughter—echoed through Carmel Valley last week as Camp Amigos opened its second summer session. Smiles and shouts, the universal language of childhood, told the whole story as 60 excited campers converged on the spacious grounds of the All Saints' Day School.

Half the campers came by bus from Seaside and Fort Ord. For many of the participants, Camp Amigos meant one thrilling first after another—a first trip to the Carmel beach, a first dunk in an outdoor pool, a first night spent sleeping outdoors under the stars. For others it meant a first opportunity to talk with and play with children from a variety of racial and economic backgrounds, and to learn that friendship and fun have no color or geographic location.

COMPACT LIFTING POWER

5 NEW FORD DIESELS. 13-30 HP

Got a lot of lifting, loading or cleanup work to do? Size up one of the new small Ford diesel tractors with a front loader. They're built like the big ones... at a compact price.

- Built-in hydraulics give you fingertip loader control and power to lift up to 700 pounds.
- Compact size means maneuverability in small spaces.
- Optional four-wheel drive gives you extra traction.
- Diesel engine efficiency stretches fuel dollars.
- Three-point hitch, 540 rpm PTO with overrunning clutch and diff-lock are standard.

If your kind of work is tough but you don't want to pay a big-tractor price, come in and try a Ford on for size.

It's a new kind of Ford!

GARDEN TALK:

What to wear while working in the garden

By JERRY FOOTE

WHAT OLD MOVIE could it have been that had a scene showing the heroine working in her garden, dressed in a filmy long dress, dainty straw bonnet and mitts?

The memory haunts me as I dress for a day outdoors. With all deference to Hollywood's version of gardening, I wonder what that girl would have looked like after a few hours of hoeing, pruning, shoveling manure and running the shredder.

As any gardener will tell you, the hobby is like genius: 90 percent perspiration and 10 percent inspiration.

So, what do you wear in the garden?

I am sure each of you has a favorite costume. Drive through any neighborhood, observe and compare yours with the faded bathing suits, leftover parts of uniforms, cutoffs and former maternity clothes—wonderful variations on the theme and part of a long and honorable tradition.

MY CURRENT COSTUME has been bestowed on me for the most part by my male relatives. What a joy to have children who are guaranteed to grow several inches a year and thus outgrow all sorts of useful garments. I must be the only gardener in the Valley who works in a shirt that graduated from the University of Virginia and has a monogram on the sleeve. On cool days, an old windbreaker goes on over it. On warm days, I substitute a cotton knit shirt left behind by a visiting nephew. I loved that shirt on sight and was careful never to return it.

On my head is a cotton bandana filched from my husband's handkerchief drawer and on top of it goes a battered straw hat from the men's department of a cut-rate drug store.

Athletic socks have a way of ending up on me instead of in their proper places; however, my boots are my very own, bought under the supervision of my youngest child. They remind me of that ancient insult, "Aw, yer mother wears Army shoes."

MY BLUE JEANS are no longer the boys' old Levis. Unfortunately, middle age has altered certain measurements which now require an elastic waistband and a blouson effect.

When I look in the tool house for gloves, there is a pile of six lefts and one right in various stages of dilapidation. Why wear them at all? With these hands, what I really need is a pair of white gloves to wear at the dinner table.

Any costume is fine at home, but when worn abroad can cause confusion.

You might think our church garden would be tended by someone in conservative dress—or maybe a robe? Not at all. The Garden Guild costumes are unrestrained enough to give the passerby a start. Could that possibly be the scrubbed and modestly dressed Sunday matron who can be seen, unkempt head over run-down heels, in a bed of seedlings? Her comfort is that her flowers do not care a bit how she looks. They pour out their loveliness in response to the care and affection the oddly clad gardener gives them.

Picture, if you can, the gardener of Miramonte Road as she goes out to work. Hollywood may pass her by when it remakes that old movie, but if it ever needs a female Scarecrow of Oz, here she is, trowel in hand, dressed for the occasion!

Next week: Gardens for Children.

Bus service scheduled to start Sept. 1

Extension of public transportation into Carmel Valley is still scheduled to start Sept. 1, according to the Monterey Peninsula Transit.

Buses will travel along Carmel Valley Road from Carmel Valley Village to Carmel Rancho Shopping Center to link the Valley with the Monterey Peninsula.

Service to and from Carmel Valley Village will be hourly, Monday through Saturday. Buses will run between 6:45 a.m. and 6:45 p.m. There will be 18 westbound and 18 eastbound bus stops along Carmel Valley Road.

The extension of a route into Carmel Valley is one of two new lines which will be added to the transit district system in September. The other is a Monterey-Salinas line along Highway 68.

Eleven new buses were ordered by the transit district earlier this year in anticipation of the service expansion. They were scheduled for delivery in August, according to Frank Lichtanski, transit district assistant general manager. The manufacturer, however, has notified the transit district that the buses won't be available until mid-

September.

The transit district said that delay of the 11 new buses won't hamper the start of its two new routes on Sept. 1.

To absorb some of the load until the new buses arrive, the transit district has leased three 30-year-old coaches.

"Since the transit system makes seasonal schedule adjustments with the start of school," said Charles Benson, chairman of the transit district board, "it seemed more practical to temporarily lease additional buses rather than postpone the new service."

Lichtanski said that the used buses were previously operated by the Alameda-Contra Costa Transit District. He said the transit district has inspected the buses and "they are in excellent mechanical condition."

The lease price is $300 per bus per month. Lichtanski said the 30-year-old buses will be used throughout the transit district.

Benson said the 11 new buses will permit disposal of six 1960 model buses, as well as the three being leased. "At that time, MPT will have one of the most modern transit fleets in the nation, with the oldest vehicle being a 1976 model," Benson said.

RIDING IS FUN AT

RANCHO LAURELES EQUESTRIAN CENTER

Some days we school; others we jump or do gymnastics. Most rides start out with a turn or two around our half-mile lapping track (the footing's grand!) and end with a refreshing cool-off for the horses' legs in the Carmel River. And Garland Park is our playground, for a leisurely trail ride or a fast conditioning trot uphill.

We're proving that a contented horse is a pleasure to own and ride. Our clean, safe, comfortable quarters and generous feedings of top-quality hay and bran, plus ready access to salt and fresh water put a bloom on your horse and keep it there.

Half of our grand old barn is rebuilt and occupied; the other half is almost ready. Keep an eye on us and you'll soon see new fencing and turnout paddocks and a cross-country course around the lapping track.

- Deluxe TC Ranch pipe corrals safeguard your horse with five-foot-high rails and six-foot dividers between horses to prevent biting or blanket chewing.
- High-protein alfalfa cubes fed morning and evening. Noon feedings by arrangement.
- Individual off-the-ground feeders and safe waterers.
- Corrals cleaned and raked morning and evening.

More horses...but good ones scarce

By LUCY SMITHSON

THERE HAS BEEN AN explosion in the horse population of this country since the 1950s. From an estimated population of less than 2 million, it is now guessed that there are about 9 million horses in the United States ... about 10 percent of them in California.

Last summer we took a cross country trip in which I looked at several hundred horses. Most of them were pretty ordinary animals. Plenty were out and out snakes.

What struck us was the scarcity of good horses. In the light of increasing demand for riding horses, every animal capable of reproducing has been allowed to do so. The result is a serious decline in overall quality.

This decline in quality is accompanied by a seeming contradiction. Almost every animal being bred is registered with some breed society. Every breed society has lofty statements in its by-laws concerning desirable conformation.

The face of it is that breed societies are not doing their jobs in promoting desirable breed characteristics. They have knuckled under to the economics of supply and demand. Horses are worth money ... the registration paper is worth money ... and yes, you can fool quite a lot of people quite a lot of the time.

YOU MAY ASK HOW such a situation can come about in light of the intense competition at horse shows? Surely if a mare owner breeds to a winning show stallion, he will be getting winning conformation?

It comes down to what classes did the stallion (or mare) win? There is a strange dichotomy in American horse shows. There are performance winners and there are halter winners. And never the twain shall meet.

This is a great pity. Supposedly winners of halter classes have the most perfect conformation ... conformation which would allow them to perform with superiority should their owners have elected to show them in performance classes.

After all, conformation is closely related to performance. Good performance cannot be achieved without good conformation. That's why we put such emphasis on a horse possessing good conformation ... because we want him to be able to perform well.

In actual practice, many halter winners are of inadequate conformation. Some impressions of good conformation can be faked. Although, in all fairness, not all horse show judges can be fooled.

NONETHELESS, FAT CAN cover a lot of sins. You've never seen a halter entry that was trim and fit. Good clip jobs can straighten out minor leg deficiencies. An educated horseshoer can stay within the shoeing rules and still turn a duck into a swan. Note how carefully we pull the tails and trim the manes of halter class horses to give the desired impression of thinness here, body there. Let's not even mention wired ears, or oiled eyes. Nor ginger.

It is true that halter class entries are trotted for the judge. Some ranking is supposed to be done on the basis of how the horse moves. But the moves required of a halter class horse are quite unrelated to those required in a performance class. As long as he doesn't wing like a wounded pigeon, a straight shouldered toe-dragger has his gait rated equal to an equine Rudolph Nureyev. In practical terms, it's an either-or situation. yes or no. Yes, you've got four legs. No, you ain't got.

The number of riding horses in this country has dramatically increased. The level of competition at horse shows has increased also. However, the overall quality has dropped.

Therefore, some corrective measures need to be taken both by breed societies and by the American Horse Shows Association which oversees them. One of the most obvious measures would be to upgrade the judging standards for halter classes.

Instead of the judge viewing the horse's gaits only in a direct line towards and away from him, we suggest that the European triangle pattern be adopted. The horse is moved on three legs of a triangle with the judge standing at one apex. The judge sees the horse coming directly at him and moving directly away from him on two legs of the triangle. On the third leg of the triangle he sees the full side view of the horse and has some better idea of how the horse actually moves.

HOW THE HORSE actually moves should be codified so that judges can apply a numerical score to a horse. This is too important a feature to be left to subjective judgment.

If a judge must give a 0 to 10 score on the horse's freedom and fluidity of movement, we would soon see more breeders selecting for long muscles and deep shoulder. Currently short, straight shoulders are being selected against in all breeds—but not very rigorously. Short, bunchy muscles and their relation to gait are, however, not being understood nor discriminated against.

With a 0 to 10 score required on the trait of balance, we will see more horses that use their top line. Stiff backs or weak loins which do not flex currently do not hinder a horse in halter classes.

Marking a horse 0 to 10 in terms of forward movement will shortly breed out low-necked individuals or those with poorly angulated hips. As important as overstride is to the performance horse, he cannot achieve it with poor conformation.

The day must come when the halter and performance horse will be the same individual. More people are realizing that a "pretty" horse is one that uses its body in an athletic way.

Design of waste-water ponds questioned

A HYDROLOGIST retained by the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association is worried about the plans for sewage treatment at Carmel Valley Ranch given concept approval last week by the county health department.

John Logan of Carmel states flatly: "A backup system is necessary, considering the proximity of the effluent holding ponds to Cal-Am's well field that is a major source of drinking water for some 100,000 persons."

Developers of the Carmel Valley Ranch won concept approval for their plans to build a sewage treatment plant to serve the 500 condominiums proposed for the property located at Mid Carmel Valley. The treated effluent would be stored in a 8-9 acre holding pond that would be lined with plastic. This is the provision in the tentative agreement that worried Logan.

IN A REPORT to the board of directors of the CVPOA, Logan states: "Carmel Valley Ranch engineers propose to seal the waste-water ponds with a sheet of 20-mil poly vinyl chloride (PVC), without any backup system to provide an additional barrier to infiltration. The plastic can be perforated accidentally, seams may fail, and burrowing animals can chew through it."

He proposes that the county require the developers to "Provide a subgrade of at least 12 inches of selected clayey material below the lining of all ponds, and place an additional 18-inch layer of sandy material on top of the plastic." He further suggests that the county "prepare calculations of the time it will take for any accidental spills to reach the Cal-Am wells...The Carmel Valley Ranch should consider the threat that the proposed disposal system imposes on public health and should present expert opinion that the system is indeed safe."

WHEN THE DEVELOPERS of Carmel Valley Ranch won approval of the specific plan on a split vote of the board of supervisors two and one half years ago, several conditions were placed on the project, including the condition that a sewage disposal plan acceptable to the county and to the state Water Quality Control Board would be devised. In last week's edition, we reported on the specific details of the plan that was granted concept approval by Walter Wong, the county's director of Environmental Health.

Excerpts from Mr. Logan's report follow:

Carmel Valley Ranch proposed to hold treated sewage above the aquifer that is the main source of drinking water for about 100,000 persons and any accidental leakage will occur at a point within a few hundred feet of Cal-Am's major wells that provide drinking water for those 100,000 customers.

Such an accidental injection of sewage--albeit treated--should not be permitted so close to a major supply of drinking water. Treat waste water and reuse it, certainly, but do not do so where it can be picked up by Cal-Am's wells unless such wastes have resided in the underground for at least one year before they enter the supply system.

The impermeabilization of the holding ponds is obviously an important matter. On July 9, a number of persons met at the Monterey County Department of Health, Salinas, to hear the proposals by the engineers representing the Carmel Valley Ranch on the method of lining the waste-water holding ponds.

The engineers propose that the pond lining will consist of two 10-mil laminated sheets of PVC, set on a smooth rock-free subgrade of natural material and covered with rock-free common backfill with a thickness of 12 inches. Should the excavated subgrade be rocky or gravelly, they propose to place a sandy cushion of 3-6 inches of thickness.

By this proposal, the 20-mil PVC liner becomes the only--repeat--only block against infiltration of waste water into Cal-Am's water supply. There is no redundancy: there is no back-up system. Should the PVC liner fail for any reason, sewage will enter the water supply.

A lining system designed to achieve essential impermeability often contains the following elements (in order, from top to bottom):

1. Wear course;
2. Protective course;
3. Primary course--the main watertight element;
4. Drainage course;
5. Secondary course;
6. Base course.

That common schedule provides back-up impermeability should the primary course fail through improper seaming,

Carmel Valley Ranch treatment plant needs backup system to protect nearby

Cal-Am's well field, hydrologist claims perforation or other accident. The Carmel Valley Ranch proposal contains only a single element of impermeability.

In the meeting of July 9 the county insisted that there be a back-up for the proposed one-acre emergency pond (designed to store raw wastes). The Carmel Valley Ranch engineers agreed that that pond should have a sub-liner of six inches of local clayey material.

Such a back-up on a single one-acre emergency pond is insufficient.

Each pond that holds reclaimed wastes should have:

- (1) A subgrade of at least 12 inches of selected clayey material having a permeability of 1×10^{-8} cm/sec or less, plus
- (2) A cover-course consisting of selected sandy material at least 18 inches thick.

Redundancy must be provided! The concern is not that of the design of an irrigation system for a golf course, but rather that of the possible injection of sewage into the water supply of the Monterey Peninsula. A powerful safety factor must be built into the ponds.

It does not require heroic efforts to puncture the 20-mil PVC. I can stab a pencil through it quite easily and a burrowing animal could chew through it almost without effort. Accidents can happen; seams can fail; and as a result, redundancy becomes necessary.

During the meeting, the developers stated that the construction of a back-up system would be quite costly. They are correct, of course. But is not the public safety worth an expense? Is it more important to protect the Carmel Valley Ranch's investment (by permitting low-cost construction) or to protect the 100,000 people of the Monterey Peninsula?

SOME ATTENTION was given to the height of the buried lining above the water level at the banks of the ponds. Mr. Blatt proposed a freeboard of six inches. The state wanted two feet and they will try to determine the acceptability of a compromise of one foot. Should one foot of freeboard be permitted, with the liner being installed at a slope of 4-to-1, there will only be eight feet between the edge of the pond and the end of the lining. Even modest waves could run that far up the bank and infiltrate the soil beyond the lining, and percolate directly to the ground-water body.

In order to have an adequate safety factor against direct infiltration, freeboard should not be less than 24 inches.

I do not believe that any attention has yet been given to the influence of seiches (seismically induced waves) on freeboard. It is possible that seiches may be quite small and can be disregarded, yet their possible magnitudes should be estimated before the lining design is completed. The Ranch should engage a qualified person (such as Dr. James Slosson, whom the Ranch has hired before) for such purpose.

IN THE SUBSURFACE, nature has a high capability for the removal of pathogens from waste waters and the longer the underground residence time, the more complete the removal process. It is generally accepted that a minimum residence of one year is needed before a waste water is intercepted by a public supply well. In the July 9 meeting it was stated that a one-year period would be met, for accidental infiltrations through the lining that might migrate to the Cal-Am wells.

It may be only an off-hand opinion that can be incorrect. The matter is very important and detailed calculations should be made available for review.

During the many past months, the Carmel Valley Ranch and its consultants have addressed almost every facet of their proposal except that of the threat of danger to Cal-Am's water supply.

Where are the calculations of underground residence times?

Where are the public health specialists that can assure us that the disposal system is indeed safe?

Where are the sanitarians that can describe similar systems that are operating successfully in other parts of the country?

Where is the virologist who states that he would permit his children to drink our water should the Ranch's disposal scheme be approved?

It is time for the Ranch to present expert opinions on these matters.

Sanitary district may provide service for Rancho Canada Lodge

By STEVE HELLMAN

THE RELUCTANCE of the Carmel Sanitary District to accept new annexations was broken last week for the proposed 175-room Rancho Canada Lodge.

At their July 17 meeting district directors announced a willingness to enter into an agreement with lodge president Nick Lombardo to provide sewer service to the proposed resort hotel in Carmel Valley.

If approved, the agreement would remove one of the major obstacles blocking Lombardo's proposal.

Directors unanimously decided that the sanitary district would provide a sewer hookup to the planned Rancho Canada Lodge to treat approximately 30,000 gallons of sewage a day beginning July 1, 1981. The district also stipulated that Lombardo use reclaimed water to irrigate his Rancho Canada golf courses.

Directors stipulated that if Lombardo and the district are unable to reach an agreement on the contract by Oct. 1, the lodge operators would have to find some other means of disposing of wastes.

The agreement would be terminated if a regulatory agency forbids the sanitary district to accept any hookups.

Lombardo asked the board for a letter of intent on the hookup contract which he could present to the county Board of Supervisors.

The sanitary district flatly refused Lombardo a connection last year because of its ban on new hookups.

THE DISTRICT'S Early Reclamation Project, approved in January, calls for the use of reclaimed wastewater on Peninsula golf courses, including Rancho Canada.

The trade-off, if approved, would mean that Lombardo could meet the most stringent condition standing in the way of the final approval of a use permit to allow him to build a 175-room resort hotel at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

On June 26, the county Board of Supervisors tentatively approved a use permit for the construction of the lodge, provided Lombardo could meet conditions on sewage disposal, road improvements and open space.

(The supervisors were scheduled to consider final approval of the use permit at their meeting Tuesday, July 24.)

AFTER THE SANITARY district denied him a hookup last year, Lombardo had planned to construct his own $500,000 sewage treatment plant for the lodge. During the June 26 hearing on the use permit, supervisors said it was illogical for Lombardo to develop his own facility when the sanitary district has a sewer line that crosses through the Rancho Canada property. They wanted him to hook up to the sanitary district despite its moratorium on annexations.

This requirement was seen as a major obstacle for Rancho Canada, until the announcement last week of the district's intention to enter into a service agreement.

However, Lombardo told this newspaper on Thursday that there were some doubts as to whether he will automatically accept the offer.

"I don't want to be the only golf course on the Peninsula using effluent," he said. "I'd surely suffer in the marketplace."

Sanitary district attorney Don Freeman agreed with Lombardo. "The plan won't fly if we don't get agreements from the Pebble Beach golf courses," Freeman said.

According to the plans for the reclamation project, Freeman said, "We must have in our hands minimum 20-year contracts for disposal of reclaimed water. We've given ourselves 60 days, until Oct. 1, to negotiate agreements."

FREEMAN SAID THE incentive for acceptance of the reclamation project will be that the price of the reclaimed water will not exceed the price of drinkable water.

The Pebble beach courses irrigate with potable water bought from the California-American Water Company. Lombardo uses his own wells for the Rancho Canada courses.

Lombardo's incentive, Freeman said, will be the sewage disposal condition for his use permit.

If the Carmel Sanitary District were to accept a hookup for Rancho Canada, director Vernon Had argued, "We'll have to guarantee hookups for other people who have been paying taxes on sewer bonds for 20-30 years."

Board president Ken McGinnis agreed. "If we take in Rancho Canada, then we must take in the Odello project and the River Inn," he said.

Head suggested that the board attempt to establish a policy that would reserve the amount of capacity necessary to serve owners of vacant property who have been paying taxes to the district over the years.

FREEMAN EXPLAINED THAT even though such a reservation program was started, the sanitary district couldn't guarantee a hookup because it is still subject to the regulations of state agencies. These regulatory agencies could reduce the rated capacity of the district treatment plant, he noted.

Business manager O.K. Bigelow commented that it might be possible to reserve gallonage sufficient to serve the estimated needs of undeveloped properties in the district before allowing more annexations.

Jim Pruitt, a director since 1958, stated: "We should review this ban on hookups."

Referring to the consideration of a hookup for Rancho Canada, Pruitt said, "It comes down to our own constraints on ourselves."

"Our real constraint," he said, "is the quality of water we put into the ocean. The treatment plant has the capacity for four million gallons per day." The plant currently operates on a 2.4 million gallons per day capacity.

Pruitt, supported by director Ted Weller, insisted: "I'd rather not have us be an obstacle to this project (Rancho Canada)."

MEANWHILE, LOMBARDO TOOK issue with the district and the state position that no additional effluent can be discharged into Carmel Bay.

"They're wailing at the wall, castigating themselves for their own lack of sophistication," Lombardo charged.

"Marine species are not endangered by effluent. The state experts, Sedway-Cooke consultants—their own experts—tell the sanitary district there's no problem," Lombardo said.

Lombardo's comments were prompted in part by a June 12 letter to the sanitary district from professor Isabella Abbott of Hopkins Marine Station in Monterey concerning a proposal to limit discharges of effluent into the south Monterey Bay by 1981. Abbott said the evidence was clear that treated effluent actually benefits marine plants and animals.

Abbott, who made her first algae collection in the bay in 1962, said, "The presence of these organisms is the strongest possible evidence you could have that the health of South Monterey Bay has improved, and, in fact, is in great shape."

Wastewater management proposal

Sanitary district studies Valley expansion plan

By STEVE HELLMAN

THE CARMEL SANITARY District may expand into a new line of business that would remove sewage disposal obstacles for several major land developments in Carmel Valley.

The district Board of Directors voted 5-0 at its meeting Tuesday, July 17, to consider a proposal that the district manage wastewater and sewage disposal facilities outside its boundaries.

Despite fears among the directors that such a program may cause a landslide of applications and a miasma of new fees and regulations, they agreed to form a blue-ribbon committee to study the expansion proposal.

The committee, comprised of two directors, district general manager, district engineer and outside engineering experts, is scheduled to present its recommendations on the expansion proposal at the directors' next meeting, Tuesday, Aug. 21.

THE VOTE TO FORM the committee Tuesday followed a request for annexation from the Village Greens condominium development, which is located at Ford Road and Carmel Valley Road, beyond the district's boundary near the mouth of the Valley.

The state Regional Water Quality Control Board requires that a single septic tank system for any development over four units—Village Greens is 22 units—be operated by a public agency.

District directors denied Village Greens' annexation request, although they acknowledged the district would eventually have to accept responsibility for wastewater management in the Carmel Valley.

Director Vernon Head noted that the proposed Barbara Mark condominium development and Carmel Valley Ranch would face the same requirements of the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Head said, "Once this starts (outside annexations) they'll all fall in line. How much extra cost and manpower does this mean?"

THE DISTRICT, HEAD said, would be in a better position to evaluate expansion into service contracts once "we get a little further down the road with our AWP (Areawide Facilities Plan)."

Director Ted Weller agreed. "We're putting ourselves in an entirely separate business. We'll need additional staff, not to mention servicing those tanks that were put in a long time ago. We'll be up at four in the morning on calls (for maintenance service)."

Echoing the same concerns for "vast problems" if the district accepted service annexations, director Charlotte Hurst added, "I'm also one of those drinking water from the aquifer."

"THERE ARE SOME LARGE tanks up the Valley about to malfunction over the aquifer. This district will have to make a decision at some point on this," Hurst said.

Veteran director Jim Pruitt said the district was responsible for a solution despite the fact that "we really don't know what we're getting into."

"We've no idea of the number of applications alone that we'll get for this service," Pruitt said.

He insisted that either the district would annex and operate the separate private septic systems, or step aside for a new sanitation district under the jurisdiction of the county.

THE COUNTY WOULD form the Carmel Valley Sanitation District in conjunction with the Carmel Valley Ranch development, according to Walter Wong of the county Health Department.

The county has granted concept approval to Carmel Valley Ranch for an on-site mechanical sewage treatment plant.

According to Wong, the county Public Works Department would operate the plant and possibly administer the new sanitation district.

The Carmel Valley Ranch plant wouldn't be able to provide additional sewer hook-ups to other developments in the Valley. "The plant is designed for the size of the ranch only," Wong said.

He said the new district would be administered by the county only if the Carmel Sanitary District and the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District refuse.

"The county is as reluctant as everybody else to enter this business of wastewater management," Wong said.

"IT'S A PAIN for anyone," Wong added. "You've got a basic equity problem. Some tanks have no problems and some have constant problems. Then with a mechanical plant it's a whole other ball game."

Wong noted that since the Regional Water Quality Control Board adopted the requirement for public agency operation of large septic systems, there has not been one new district formed for this purpose.

He admitted, "The county is caught between the districts (Carmel Sanitary District and Monterey Peninsula Water Management District) and their reluctance to take the ball."

"The county would be glad to give it up at any time," Wong said. "But with development pressure, it's coming down to where someone has to say yes or no."

BRUCE BEULL, MANAGER of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District, told this newspaper, "There is strong concern on our board over a new district."

"What will happen to all this additional sewage? Our main concern in the Valley is the quality of water in the aquifer," Beull said.

A report prepared by Kennedy Engineers of San Francisco for the Areawide Facilities Plan concluded that the aquifer is threatened by increasing amounts of septic tank effluent.

Beull said that while the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District monitors water quality in the aquifer, the responsibility for sewage disposal remains with the Carmel Sanitary District.

"IT'S GOING TO COME sooner or later," Don Berry of Kennedy Engineers said at the Tuesday meeting.

"The (Carmel) district will inherit wastewater management in Carmel Valley. With a long-range outlook, the district should plan a separate department and a wastewater management zone," Berry advised.

Bud Bigelow, acting general manager of the district, said if the district chooses to expand into management of on-site facilities, it would require additional employees, set-up costs, a separate department and a long-range plan.

DIRECTOR HURST NOTED that there is consideration of this operation in the Areawide Facilities Plan.

She added, "We're mandated by the coastal plan to take it up at some point."

"Maybe it would be best to get it as a baby when we can dress it how we want it, than later," Mrs. Hurst said.

Hurst recommended the formation of the committee to study the matter and return with its report to the next meeting Tuesday, Aug. 21.

TAKES SHAPE: The 63-foot fishing schooner being built by Larry Fulgham of Carmel Valley at Moss Landing will carry 1,260 square feet of sail. The steel-hulled-sailing/fishing vessel will be 42 feet long at the waterline and displace 38 tons. Its small engine will be used to navigate in and out of the harbor and for trolling. Huge savings in fuel are expected because sail power will be used to get the schooner to and from the fishing grounds. The craft will be painted in about a month and should be launched a month or so later.

'73 gasoline crunch inspired CV man to build fishing boat with sails

By AL EISNER

LARRY FULGHAM of Carmel Valley thinks that sailing vessels equipped for fishing have a future.

The 53-year-old ship's carpenter is building a 63-foot steel-hulled schooner at Moss Landing that will be able to carry 20 tons of fish in its hold. It will be wind-powered, but will have a small diesel engine to navigate in and out of harbors and for trolling.

Fulgham conceived the idea in 1973 during the first gasoline crunch. Working on boats at Moss Landing, he said he "once counted 18 minutes until a car passed by on Highway 1." With prophetic vision, the idea of a sailing/fishing boat began to form in his mind.

He laid the keel last October. He expects to launch the craft, which will displace 38 tons, "in a month or two."

Fulgham chuckles when he recalls the attitude of some of the old fishermen who saw him begin to build his schooner last year. "What're you doing there?" they asked. "I'm building a fishing schooner—it will be powered by sail," Fulgham answered.

The fishermen elbowed each other and guffawed. "A fishing boat with sails?—it'll never work," they mocked.

Fulgham says their attitude changed markedly with the onset of the diesel fuel shortage. After fishermen in San Diego last month found themselves lining up for the precious fuel, sometimes waiting two weeks for their allocation, Fulgham said the Moss Landing fisherman came around and asked: "Now, sonny, would you tell me again how this boat is supposed to work?"

"FISHING AND SAILING are not altogether new, you know," Fulgham says with wry understatement. "Matter of fact, it wasn't until the beginning of this century that fishing boats used motor power." He added that the state of Alaska

THE FISHING/SAILING vessel being built now by Fulgham at Moss Landing is rigged as a gaff-headed schooner. He decided on the schooner rigging because it gave better balance to the boat; the gaff rigging at the top of the two large sails cuts down on the length of the masts but still provides plenty of sail area. Also, in the event of foul weather, one or more of the sails can be dropped quickly and the skipper can still retain control of the boat. The schooner will carry 1,260 square feet of sail.

LARRY FULGHAM of Carmel Valley says he is building the only sailing/fishing boat on the West Coast that is primarily designed as a fishing boat. Fulgham said he first conceived the idea of building the craft when he noticed a sharp drop-off in Highway 1 traffic as he worked at a ship repair yard in Moss Landing. He is contemplating becoming a part-time fisherman and says he will sell plans for the schooner to anyone interested in building one.

Gas crunch inspired fishing schooner

did not permit fishing with power craft off its shores until 1953.

"A couple of local boats headed for crab fishing off Alaska had to turn around because they weren't sure of their ability to get fuel," Fulgham said.

BORN IN Bingham, Utah, Fulgham says he has always been interested in boats ... but only in sailboats—not the power variety.

He spent his youth in Portland, Oregon, and attended art school there. He recalled that he and his brother, Les, built kayaks together when they were kids. (Les, a barber, lives in Pebble Beach. He is helping his brother build the boat.)

He lived in the Virgin Islands for 3½ years, he said, and in 1958 built a 36-foot Alden yawl. He was employed as a carpenter, then foreman and later superintendent of a big construction firm on St. Croix. "We built a Volkswagen plant, a hotel and some other big projects," Larry recalls. He moved on to Washington, Oregon, and then to Boulder, Colorado.

It was there that he heard from Les, who had settled in Carmel. Les, who has sailed large sailboats in the oceans, thought his brother could find work as a ship's carpenter at Moss Landing. Larry went to work on a contract basis for Ernie Gravelle, owner of a boatyard.

He realized only recently, though, that his was a rapidly-disappearing profession. "The wooden boats are falling apart and it's almost impossible to fix them ... you can't get materials, and when you can they're too expensive," Larry says. "I soon saw there would be no work for me. So, I took a course in welding at Hartnell College. The fishing schooner really started as a 'make-work' project," Larry says. He designed the boat and finished the plans on July 4th, 1978.

THE SCHOONER will be 53 feet long on deck, 42 feet at the waterline. It will have a 7-foot draft and carry 1,000 gallons of fuel. Its 6-cylinder engine will develop 115 maximum h.p. and fuel consumption will be 1½ gallons per hour maximum. That is one-fourth the fuel consumption of a 50-foot motor fishing boat, Fulgham says, which carries 3,000 gallons of fuel. Its hull speed is 9½ knots, but Fulgham says it will be "faster under sail than motor power."

Fulgham says he designed the craft as a gaff-headed schooner rig rather than the more popular Bermuda (or Marconi) rig because the masts would be shorter, and therefore the craft would be easier to handle.

A schooner is a two-masted ship; the shorter mast, or foremast, is forward of the mainmast. The prime purpose of two masts, Fulgham explained, is to split the sail plane into two segments to keep the boat in sailing balance. The gaff rigging extends and broadens the sail area but keeps the masts lower. With light winds and moderate sea, extra sails can be set to keep the craft moving. The sail area can quickly be reduced for safe sailing, however, if the craft encounters strong winds and rough seas.

The mainmast of his schooner will be 46 feet off the deck,

AN EXAMPLE OF cost-cutting was the coup Fulgham scored when he purchased three damaged steel light poles from the city of Salinas for only $15 each. He estimates it would have cost $600 or more for each mast if he bought them. He says he will remove the legend, "To cross street, push button, wait for walk signal."

Gas crunch inspired fishing boat with sails

the foremast will be five feet shorter. The boat will also have a jib and a club-footed jib forward. In all, the schooner will carry 1260 square feet of sail.

Fulgham said he discarded the idea of using a ketch rig, which uses a smaller (mizzen) mast at the stern, because the boom would have swung over the captain's cabin.

FULGHAM SAYS his schooner is the "first one now being built that is a fishing boat first and a sailboat second. Most sailing/fishing boats are pleasure craft designs that have been adapted for fishing."

How does it differ from motor/sailing boats? "Most motor/sailing fishing boats depend 75 percent on the motor and 25 percent on sail power. My boat will use 90 percent sail power and only rely on the motor for 10 percent of the power requirements," Fulgham explained. He added that the boat will "go anywhere in the world."

Because it uses so little fuel, Fulgham says, his boat will be able to stay out 35-40 days. The average 40-foot motor fishing boat that operates out of Moss Landing usually stays out for 7-14 days and unloads six tons of fish, he added. "Those boats are vastly overpowered and use huge amounts of fuel."

His sailing/fishing boat will consume one gallon of fuel per hour at half-speed, and only 3/4 gallons per hour at trolling speed. It will not consume any fuel, of course, when it is sailing to its destination.

Fulgham expects that his schooner will be used for albacore fishing. It could range as far as British Columbia. During September and October, though, it will probably be used to catch albacore off Pt. Pinos.

He designed the cabin (which will have a fireplace) so that only two people can operate the boat. It will have autopilot and a lot of other state-of-the-art electronic gear. The forward cabin will sleep four very comfortably.

THE CRAFT WILL have an estimated value of $150,000 when it is complete, Fulgham says. Thus far, he has only spent $18,000 out of pocket, however. He has done this by buying his materials very carefully (and sometimes creatively), by "scrounging" and by minimizing labor costs. "I bought the steel plate for an average 17 1/2 cents per pound. It now costs 24 cents per pound."

The schooner's masts, he chuckled with great satisfaction, are damaged steel light poles purchased from the city of Salinas for $15 each. "Equivalent masts would have cost $500 or more each—and these are galvanized." The poles will have to be lengthened by bolting 7-inch cylinders to the bases. The added materials will cost far more than the poles—which still have a plaque saying: "To cross street—push button and wait for walk signal."

His investment will be boosted when he adds the electronic gear, the autopilot and $4,000 worth of sails. he hopes to recoup some of his costs by selling plans to other people interested in building their own fishing/sailers.

LARRY AND LES FULGHAM pause on deck of the fishing schooner they are building. Larry (left), a ship's carpenter, learned to weld when he realized his trade was fast disappearing because of the high cost of repairing wooden boats. He started working on the schooner as a "make-work" project, but when the fuel crunch hit, his work took on more urgency. His brother, Les, is a barber in Carmel.

PORTUGUESE LONG LINES that will carry 350 hooks will be used for fishing, Fulgham said. He explained that this method of fishing differed from techniques used by trawlers which drag huge nets behind them.

Fulgham said he has even thought about fishing as a career. "I might fish for four months and then build a boat a year," he mused.

He and his crew are welding the bulwarks right now. They expect to paint the boat in about a month and launch it a month or so later.

The old-time fishermen of the Moss Landing fishing fleet will be watching closely. As the price of fuel escalates, they'll probably watch even closer.

School district's bailout money may go for salaries

Despite the state Legislature's approval of a bailout bill with a $488 million increase over last year, the Carmel Unified School District is not out of financial trouble.

"It's not going to bail us out completely," said school board member Richard Wilsdon, referring to the bill's 8.6 percent increase for school districts statewide.

The 8.6 increase over last year's bailout money will be limited for the Carmel school district because teachers' salaries are still undetermined, because of inflation and because the larger share of the money will go to poorer districts, Wilsdon explained.

Until complete details of the bailout measure, AB8, are made available, Wilsdon said the district will not know whether it can hire back all its teachers and restore a six-period day at Carmel Middle School.

"We have to play political football every year until the Legislature decides how to fund us," Wilsdon said. Termination notices were sent to 17 Carmel teachers earlier this year.

Wilsdon said that of the 17 teachers terminated earlier this year, three-fourths of them were hired back, but the remaining teachers and 13 classified employees are still terminated until the details of the bailout bill are available from the state education department.

Much of the bailout money, Wilsdon explained, might not move past the bargaining table between teachers and the district. Negotiations are still in the process over the teachers' salary schedule. The teachers have asked for a 9 percent salary increase.

Wilsdon said, "If we give teachers just a 3½ percent increase, we'd empty our reserves." After Proposition 13 last year, the district's reserves plummeted from $551,650 to $131,347.

"The bailout money may have to go into the salary schedule."

"I don't blame the teachers. It's hard to tell them they're getting only 3½ percent when they pick up the paper and see inflation at 11 percent," Wilsdon said.

"The 8.6 percent (bailout increase) is more than the 6 percent which the governor wanted and which we had budgeted for," Wilsdon said.

He added, however, "We need to see what they've done with categorical spending."

The district receives specific funding for several categories and it was still unknown what funds would be available for them. The categorical funds are used to finance summer school, school buses, programs for the physically and mentally handicapped, mandatory adult education, mandatory maintenance and continuation school.

Wilsdon said he called Sacramento several times for details on AB8, but officials there had no "up-to-date information. It's a god-awful process. We won't know until the state Board of Education puts together its information."

Wilsdon said the 8.6 increase was the only detail available. He said it would be further limited for the Carmel school district because it must be brought into conformity with the Serrano decision. The 1972 court decision guarantees a larger share of funds for the poorer districts in order to assure equitable education for school children. Carmel isn't considered a poor district.

"It's safe to assume we'll have more than we budgeted for," Wilsdon said. "But it wasn't so much the bucks we wanted. We really needed something in the bill that outlined the funding for future years."

Wilsdon, who is now in his third term on the school board, said the school districts throughout the state were hoping for a mechanism in the bailout bill that would provide funding projections for 5-10 years.

However, the bill included only an "automatic deflator factor," which Wilsdon said means nothing in the face of continuing double-digit inflation.

"It's predicated on the federal government bringing inflation under control. If they can't, then the deflator factor is worthless because the Legislature won't be able to keep the process constant," Wilsdon said.

"We have to assume the worst every year. We could take chances in the past because we had budget surpluses. But we've got no reserves left now."

"This process of firing teachers and then re-hiring them blows the staff apart. It kills morale. Some teachers we would have hired back have taken jobs in other states," Wilsdon said.

"And they're often the best teachers. It's a god-awful process. Our hands are tied unless the Legislature comes up with a specific funding plan for schools," he said.

GREG FALGE of the Carmel Barracudas takes a deep breath as he slips through the water on his way to a first in the 50-yard breaststroke in the meet against Morgan Hill on July 14. The 11-year-old's time was 38.92.

Barracudas shatter 7 team records; dump Morgan Hill

Led by 10-year-old Jennie Wolf, the Carmel Barracuda swimmers shattered seven team records and captured one AAA, two AA and 55 A times as they downed the Morgan Hill Superfish 729-426 on Saturday, July 14.

The Barracudas' victory in Morgan Hill was their fourth straight as they remained undefeated in the Coast Valley Aquatics League.

Jennie's performance at the meet qualified her for the Far-Western Championships to be held in San Jose next month. She is the first Barracuda to qualify for the championships this season.

She also became the first Barracuda to capture an AAA time.

Jennie, a Carmel Valley resident, finished first and recorded a team record in the 10-under girls 50-yard breaststroke in the time of 40.5 seconds.

She went on to swim two A times in capturing first in the 100-yard individual medley and second in the 100-yard freestyle events.

Double-A times were swum by Suzy Q. Hermanson, who captured first with a new team record of 26.48 in the 15-18 girls 50-yard freestyle and Carl Bresk with a 24.46 in the same event for 15-18 boys.

Other team record-setters were Adam Stiles in the 6-under boys 25-yard backstroke, Sarah Hicks with A times in the 13-14 girls 100-yard butterfly and 200-yard individual medley, Mike Hardy with A time in the 13-14 boys 100-yard backstroke and Beth Allard with A time in the 15-18 girls 100-yard breaststroke.

Barracudas in league meet with Monterey

The Carmel Barracudas will host a Central Coast Aquatics League meet with the Monterey Bay Swim Club on Saturday, July 28, at 9 a.m. at the Carmel High School pool.

HIGHER INTEREST FOR ALL SAVERS.

We've made some important changes. New Government regulations now let us offer savers with small balances the same high return for their money only available before to larger accounts. Take a look:

THE FIRST 4-YEAR CD TIED TO TREASURY RATES.

This innovative new CD pays healthy interest. (More than banks can pay for the same certificate.) It's just 1% less than the average Treasury rate for selected 4-year securities. Like high-paying $10,000 Money Market Certificates, new rates are set by the Treasury Department. Monthly. And as little as $100 can start one.

SMALLEST MINIMUM EVER ON CD'S

We've reduced the minimum requirements for all certificates of deposit (CD's) from $1,000 to $100. (Except 6 month Money Market Certificates.) Small savers now qualify for annual interest rates as high as 8%. (Our new 4-year CD can go even higher.) The rate now depends only on how long you decide to leave your money on deposit. Not how much you deposit.

BEST RATE EVER FOR REGULAR SAVINGS.

We've raised the interest on Regular Savings by ¼%—up to 5½%. It's still more than banks can pay, and it comes automatically to our current savers.

This is our most flexible account—add or withdraw at any time with no penalty.

*Federal regulations still require an interest penalty for premature withdrawal from all certificates.

Deadlines announced for Monterey County Fair and Horse Show entries

Deadlines for entries have been announced for the 1979 Monterey County Fair and Horse Show scheduled for Aug. 21-26 at the Fairgrounds in Monterey.

Amateur photographers from five counties are invited to participate in the photographic exhibit. Color slide entries must be received by 5 p.m. Friday, July 27. Black and white prints are due Aug. 10 at 5 p.m. Entries may be taken to the fairgrounds or to one of 19 designated photo stores.

The photographic exhibit will be coordinated by the Salinas Camera Club. Galyn "Doc" Hammond is in charge of the production of the slide show where winning slides will be accompanied by a taped narration.

July 30 is the deadline for entries in home arts, floriculture and the 4-H and Future Farmers of America entries. The art entry deadline is Tuesday, July 31.

Auditions for Variety Showcase, a new outdoor stage attraction at the 1979 Fair, are scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 18, at 1 p.m.

Both amateur and professional Monterey County performers may audition their three-to-five-minute acts. The show will be Friday, Aug. 24, at 1 p.m.

Entry blanks must be at the fairgrounds by the deadline dates. The entry items will be submitted according to instructions in the premium books.

Rules and entry blanks are available at the fairgrounds office, Garden and Fairgrounds roads, Monterey. Telephone 372-5863 for more information.

Farr seeks applicants for ag board

Applications are now being accepted for the vacancy on the Monterey County Agriculture Advisory Committee, according to County Supervisor Sam Farr.

Farr, who represents the Fifth Supervisorial District, which includes Carmel and Carmel Valley, said he is looking for a representative from his district "who has an interest in agriculture. The advisory committee plays an important role in the county's one-half billion dollar agricultural industry," said Farr. "Agriculture in Monterey County produces more than a dozen crops yielding over a million dollars each."

The advisory committee also concerns itself with fish farming, which has the potential of developing a $100 million industry in this county.

"Agriculture and mariculture are totally resource dependent," said Farr, "depending upon good soil, clean air and good water. Along with addressing environmental concerns, the committee will also deal with issues related to land use and labor demands—all vital subjects to the agriculture industry."

The Committee, comprised of 15 members serving three-year terms, meets on a quarterly basis in Salinas.

Fifth District residents interested in serving on the agriculture advisory committee can apply by expressing their interest in a letter to Farr, 1200 Aguajito Rd., Monterey, 93940.

The wine connoisseur

Mineral water-tastings now more 'trendy' than wine

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

TEHUACAN, MEXICO — It's a fast four-hour drive, southeast of Mexico City, to this small village, bustling with mineral-water-bottling activity.

The curative waters which flow underground have their source in the melting snows of Mexico's highest mountain, Citlaltepetl or Pico de Orizaba, at 18,100 feet.

The flow of water which travels through the surrounding geological subterranean minerals is tapped in two main sources.

It is known that the Aztecs carried the spring waters of Tehuacan in clay vessels to the courts of Montezuma in native convoys to Tenochtitlan. Even in these pre-Cortesian times, the remarkable curative powers were recognized.

The decade of the 1970s witnessed a phenomenal surge in the nationwide recognition of the fine qualities and values of California wines. The wine-boom was so dramatic, catching the profit-gleaning eyes of large industry, the multimillion-dollar, capital-intensive aesthetic agricultural endeavor has stayed in graphics of continuing growth.

AND NOW, IN EQUALLY dramatic sales statistics, a mineral water boom is under way.

We noted in this column a couple years ago how, at the Sans Souci in Washington, D.C., our whole table of diners, which included Robert Mondavi, his son and daughter, and their local distributor, all ordered Perrier water as pre-prandial drink.

Maybe it was because we'd all been involved with much wine drinking at the city's large California wine-tasting exposition. Superficially, that could have accounted for our mutual move in the lighter, mineral water direction, but one dinner party group does not a national trend make.

But it is here!

In 1326 in the province of Liege, Belgium, a mineral water springs with curative powers was discovered in the small village of Spa. By the 18th century, Spa had become a fashionable resort, attracting European nobility to the springs for their medicinal powers.

"Taking the waters of Spa" brought the name of this village into our general vocabulary for any kind of popular rendezvous where one might "take the waters."

Much of the town was burned down in 1807, but the village continues to thrive, though its fame has been superseded by many another "Spa" with an equal number drawing crowds in other lands.

SAM BRANNAN, CALIFORNIA'S first millionaire, who printed the newspaper with the headline that rocked the world, "Gold Discovered at Sutter's Mill" in 1848, was thinking of Saratoga Springs in New York, when, years later, he had purchased many square miles surrounding the geyser-springs at the foot of Mt. Saint Helena in the Napa Valley. He had visions of a great spa, complete with racetrack, to rival Saratoga Hot Springs in New York.

After one glass too many, in a promotional speech to potential investors, out came his famous spoonerism that stuck: "This will be the greatest Calistoga spa in Sarifonia!" The resort called "Calistoga" endured, but his hotel did not.

Today, Calistoga Mineral Water is outselling Perrier in San Francisco two-to-one in the current boom. But there are dozens, almost hundreds, of imported and domestic mineral waters on the market.

Water-tastings are more trendy than wine-tastings here and there. At one such recent event in the Napa Valley, which began among a group of local residents to find out which was best of the California waters, Vichy or Springs, Bartlett, Sheffield's 02 (of Chateau St. Jean), or Calso, Penafiel was added, and according to Janet Trefethen, of the famous Trefethen Vineyards, it came in first! Everyone was stunned. Water—from Mexico?!

ON OUR ARRIVAL HERE in Tehuacan, we were given some literature about Penafiel written in " quaint " English by one of the company's public relations employees: "The Mineral Waters had been used by the indigenous of the region for treating of liver and kidney illness and that the Montezuma Emperor commanded to bring this waters to be used with same purpose. Through the Colonial age continued the use of the water's properties, by this many people were cure; among them, figures a Royal Academy Magistrate that, in the XVII century, came to this city to take the baths and water, with the purpose of cutting from the urine stones."

The message is clear, and consistent with the consulting chemists who analyzed the waters from the Vichy Springs in California in 1914: "The medicinal or pathological value of this water places it among the most important group of mineral spring waters. As a class these waters are used to stimulate the secretions of the digestive tract, neutralize superacidity of the stomach, increase metabolism, dissolve uric acid, increase the flow of urine, correct acidity of the urine, and dissolve uric acid deposits. They are therefore of value in catarrhal conditions of the mucous membranes, rheumatism, gout, diabetes, etc."

NO SUCH CLAIMS ARE allowed today for any product by our arch-restrictive FDA, but you can put sparkling mineral water into your highball, vegetable soup, pancake batter, iced tea, or just take it plain, on the morning-after, or the night-before, and gauge the benefits yourself.

Penafiel Mineral Spring Water of Tehuacan is bottled from two main springs in their six miles of underground caves under the most hygienic controls. Eighteen million cases per year are bottled and shipped.

The water has a gold medal for its superior qualities from the Center International Rogier of Brussels, in Belgium, the country from which the whole idea of the "spa" got its name.

National Horse Show continues at Fairgrounds

The 1979 Monterey National Horse Show, which began this week with top junior riders in Western and English competition, will continue next week with nearly 750 horses competing for the six-day Open Show championships Monday through Saturday, July 30-Aug. 4.

Young riders, aged 10-17, from throughout California will vie for ribbons and trophies during the final championship classes of the junior show Thursday and Friday, July 26-27 at the Pattee Arena of the Monterey County Fairgrounds, Fairgrounds and Garden Roads, Monterey. Shows are scheduled at 1 and 7:30 p.m. each day; admission is free.

The Open Show, which has attracted entries from all over the West, will begin Monday, July 30, after a two-day recess so junior entries may vacate the limited stable facilities at the Fairgrounds. Horses and riders will compete in a full range of events including hunter-jumper, Western, saddle horse, harness and roadster pony classes.

Showtime is at 1 and 7:30 p.m. each day. General admission to the Open competition is $2 for adults and $1 for children 12 and under. Reserved seats, Monday through Thursday and Friday afternoon, are $3; Friday evening and Saturday show reserved seating is $4.

In addition, Open spectators will be entertained by the draft horse driving demonstration of the Circle S Ranch Clydesdales owned by Mr. and Mrs. Lou Silva of Hayward.

Officials who will jury the events are: Don Judd of Gibsonia, Penn., who will judge hackney, harness and roadster ponies and horses, driving classes and saddle, pleasure and walking horses; New York resident Wayne Carroll, who designed the course, and will judge hunters, jumpers and hunter seat equitation; and Bill Enk of Paso Robles who will jury Western classes and stock seat equitation.

For additional information, phone 372-5863.

42nd Carmel Bach Festival concludes Sun. at Sunset Center

The 42nd Carmel Bach Festival, a 17-day-long tribute to Johann Sebastian Bach through concerts, recitals, symposia and lectures, will conclude Sunday, July 29 with a performance of his monumental work, The Passion According to St. John, at Sunset Theater, Carmel.

The Thursday concert will feature soloists Peter Corey on guitar and pianist William Doppmann in a program which includes Bach's Partita in E; Cantata, "Liebster Gott, wann werd' ich sterben"; and Sonata for two violins by J.M. Leclair.

Mozart's The Magic Flute in concert form will be presented Friday evening. Soloists are Kaaren Herr-Erickson, Ellen Kerrigan, Barry McCauley, Philip Booth, William Ramsey and Gregory Wait.

The Saturday concert with flutist Donald Peck will offer Suite for Flute and Strings in A minor by Telemann, Handel's "Lucrezia," Dramatic Cantata with mezzo-soprano Linn Maxwell; pianist Doppmann performing Mozart's Piano Concerto in C, K. 467; and Mozart's Symphony No. 41 "Jupiter", K. 551.

Sunday's matinee performance of The Passion will be sung in English by Kaaren Herr-Erickson, Douglas Lawrence, and Robert Lopez.

Concerts begin at 8 p.m. in Sunset Theater, Carmel; the Sunday matinee begins at 2 p.m.

Daytime recitals at the Bach Festival, preferred by many Festival devotees because they are more intimate than the larger evening concerts, will be performed through Saturday.

An organ recital will be presented Thursday, July 26 in Bethlehem Lutheran Church, 800 Cass St., Monterey at 3 p.m. by Kenneth Ahrens.

All other recitals begin at 11 a.m. in the Parish Hall of All Saints' Episcopal Church, Lincoln and Ninth, Carmel. Tickets are $3.50 for each event.

Flutist Donald Peck, accompanied by members of the Festival Orchestra, will perform C.P.E. Bach's Sonata in A minor for Solo Flute and Mozart's Quartet for Flute and Strings in D, K. 285 on Thursday, July 26.

A Friday recital will be given by classical guitarist Peter Corey and soprano Caterina Micieli.

Members of the Festival Orchestra and Chorale under the direction of Priscilla Salgo will offer a program of instrumental and vocal chamber music as the final recital of the series on Saturday, July 28.

In addition, a free lecture and symposium will be offered by the Carmel Bach Festival. Each program begins at 3 p.m. in All Saints' Episcopal Church.

Mozart's "The Magic Flute" will be the subject of a symposium moderated by Dr. Raymond Kendall on Friday. Bach: The Passion According to St. John will be the lecture topic of Dr. Kendall Saturday, July 28.

A limited number of tickets are still available for some concerts and recitals. Many Festival ticket holders who cannot attend a performance will return tickets to the Bach Festival office. Concert hopefuls may then purchase tickets on a first-come, first-served basis at the Sunset Center box office beginning at 7 p.m. on the evening of each concert or at the box office Thursday and Friday between 11 a.m.-4 p.m.

11th Annual Highlands Games Sat.-Sun. in Pebble Beach

The bray of bagpipes and the flit of kilts will be much in evidence when the Scottish Society of the Monterey Peninsula hosts its 11th annual Highland Games Saturday and Sunday, July 28-29 at Collins Polo Field, Pebble Beach.

The 19-foot-long Ballantine Caber will be paraded through the streets of Carmel at 4 p.m. Saturday by 30 or more pipers and members of the Scottish Society in full formal Scottish regalia. The parade will begin at the Red Lion Pub, San Carlos and Seventh, and proceed down Ocean Avenue to the Pine Inn and back to the Red Lion for the ceilidh celebration at the tavern. The caber reposes at the pub during the year between Highland Games.

Strenuous athletic events passed down from the rugged mountain men of the past, bagpipe competition, sheepdog herding demonstrations and ancient Scottish dancing will begin at 10 a.m. Sunday at Collins Polo Field.

Sporting competitions include putting the heavy stone, standing long jump, 100-yard dash, tug of war, golf hole-in-one contest and tossing the caber. The latter is a heroic trial of strength requiring contestants to throw a young tree trunk which weighs 120 pounds and is 19 feet long end over end so that it lands in the 12 o'clock position in relation to the thrower.

An impressive spectacle will be the formal opening ceremony at noon with the massing and passing in review of all the colorful marching pipe bands and the 7th Division Army Band from Fort Ord.

Tartan-costumed dancers will compete in a variety of historic sets, including the Sean Truibhas, the Sword Dance, the Highland Fling and the Argyle Broad Sword.

A popular event for many years has been the exhibition of Scottish sheepdogs working a flock of sheep. On whistle commands from their owner-trainers, the dogs bring strays back to the flock, cut out a designated sheep from the herd and perform a variety of other feats required by a shepherd.

In Scotland, the ancient games are conducted during the year in several locations. The week-long Edinburgh Military Tattoo is set in Edinburgh Castle; other well-attended games and pipe contests are staged at Oban and Braemar.

Tickets, at $4 for adults and free for children under 12, are available at Abinante Music, 425 Alvarado St., Monterey; The Scottish Shop, Ocean Avenue, Carmel; the Elks Lodge, Monterey; and the Scotch House in The Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. Tickets include the entrance fee into the Del Monte Forest. For additional information, phone 624-0890 after 6 p.m.

SCOTTISH LASSIES in clan tartans will perform the Sword Dance, the Highland Fling and other traditional Highland dances at the 11th annual Scottish Highland Games, Sunday, July 29 on Collins Polo Field, Pebble Beach. Bagpipers, caber tossing, stone putting and other athletic contests are on tap throughout the day.

Quail Lodge wins again!

Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley was the recipient of the 1979 Mobil Travel Guide Five-Star Award for the fifth straight year during recent ceremonies at The Breakers in Palm Beach, Fla.

The five-star honor was awarded to only eight hotels throughout the United States out of 20,000 establishments in 4,000 cities and towns.

Additional five-star establishments include: The Beverly Wilshire, Beverly Hills; Carlyle, New York; Fairmont, Dallas; Fairmont Hotel and Tower, San Francisco; Harrah's, South Lake Tahoe; Stanford Court, San Francisco; and Williamsburg Inn, Williamsburg, Va.

Because a One-Star rating means an above-average facility, says Allen E. Murray, president of Mobil Oil Co., it is a fine tribute to the Monterey Peninsula to have a five-star facility when there are so few awards made on this level.

Edgar H. Haber, president of Quail Lodge, enjoyed a trip to Florida to accept the award.

EDGAR H. HABER, president of Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley, receives the 1979 Mobil Travel Guide Five-Star Award during recent ceremonies at The Breakers in Palm Beach, Fla. With him, sharing in the festivities, are Carol Heiss, former Olympic Gold Medal figure skating champion, and Allen E. Murray, president, marketing and refining, Mobil Oil Corp.

Weddings are news...

Weddings are very special events and we want to tell about them. Here is how to submit your engagement or wedding news:

Obtain a wedding information for at the offices of the Pine Cone and Outlook, Ocean and San Carlos. If you prefer, write us at P.O. Box G-1, Carmel 93921. We will be happy to mail one to you. Photographs of the bride or the bride and groom together are welcomed. There are no restrictions. Both color and black and white photographs will be accepted. We cannot guarantee return of photographs. As a courtesy to the wedding parties, we will not publish a wedding story until after the wedding. For more information, call 624-0162.
